Each new school year brings with it a certain level of uncertainty. As for the 2020-2021 school year, in some ways it felt like a clean slate. Not only is it a whole new school year, but also a whole new approach for teaching. As author Warren Bennis once said, "True learning begins with unlearning." And that's exactly what everyone at CCC has set out to do. Unlearn the old methods of doing things, to make way for the new!

Since late July teachers and staff at CCC have been masked up and social distancing around the building. Additionally, extra layers of protection and new methods of cleaning and sanitizing have also been implemented.

Now that students are back in the building, life at CCC feels a bit more normal (even if everyone can only see part of each other's faces). Since the first day of school, the teachers and staff have seamlessly transitioned into "school after quarantine" with simple procedures and easy-to-follow expectations. At CCC we deeply value each moment we have in-person with all students, and we don't plan on wasting any of it!
Students are doing their part to keep everyone at CCC safe and healthy.
